REFERENCES

Allen, M. & Berkowitz, S., Hunt, S., & Louden, A. (2000). A meta-analysis of the impact of forensics and communication education on critical thinking. CommunicationEducation, 'X^, 18-30.

Atkinson, J. (1993). The basic skills needed at work: A companion report to "Basic Skills and Jobs." London, England: Institute of Manpower Studies. (ERIC Document Reproduction Service No. ED362706)

Backlund, R (1989). What should be the role of speech communication in the general education of students? In The Future of Speech Communication Education. Antiatidale,VA:NCA.

Berko, R. (1994). Adult learning and lifelong learning: A communicative perspective. Rationale kit: Information supporting the speech communication discipline and Us programs. Annandale, VA: NCA.

Bradshaw, M. E. & Chaney, L. H. (1992). Do experts and students agree on the importance of verbal and nonverbal communication skills for business success? Delta Pi EpsilonJournal, 34, 99-\ 13.

Brenton, A. L. & Gray, J. (1992). Seeing our discipline through a new lens: Speech communication in a professional college. Association for Communication Administration Bulletin, 81, 13-18.

Clark, R. D. & Shields, G. (1997). Family communication and delinquency. Adolescence, 3)2, ^1-93.

Chesebro, J. W. (1991). Standards for evaluating andjustifying a department of communication. Annandale, VA: National Communication Association.

Chesebro, J. W. (1997). Rationale for speech communication as an academic program.In NCA communication programs rationale and review kit. Annandale, VA: NationalCommunication Association.

Cockrum, K. V. (1994). Role-playing the interview. Vocational Education Journal 69 15-16.

Curtis, D. B., Winsor, J. L, & Stephens, R. D. (1989). National preferences in businessand communication education. Communication Education, 38, 6-14.

Dilenschneider, R. L. (1996). Social IQ and MBAs: Recognizing the importance of communication. Vital Speeches, 62, 404-405.

Ford, W. S. Z. & Wolvin, A. D. (1993). The differential impact of a basic communicationcourse on perceived communication competencies in class, work, and social contexts.Communication Education, 42, 215-233.

Garmston, R. J. (1995). The persuasive art of presenting. The magic of non-verbal communications. Journal of Staff Development, 16, 60-61.

Geddes, D. S. (1993). Empowerment through communication: Key people-to-people and organizational success. People and Education, 1, 76-104.

Grace, W. (1996, February). Values, vision, voice, virtue: The 4 'V model for ethical leadership development. Paper presented at the Annual International Conference of theNational Community College Chair Academy, Phoenix, AZ. (ERIC Document Reproduction Service No. ED394542)

Hart, R. P. (1993). Why communication? Why education? Toward a politics of teaching. Communication Education, 42, 97-105.

Horton, G. E. & Brown, D. (1990). The importance of interpersonal skills in consultee centered consultation: A review. Journal of Counseling and Development, 68, 423-26.

Lankard, B. A. (1990). Employability — The fifth basic skill. ERIC Clearinghouse on Adult, Career, and Vocational Education, Columbus, OH. (ERIC Document ReproductionService No. ED 325659)

Macke, F J. (1991). Communication left speechless: A critical examination of the evolution of speech communication as an academic discipline. Communication Education, AQ, 125-143.

Maes, J. D., Weldy, T. G. & Icenogle, M. L. (1997). A managerial perspective: Oral communication competency is most important for business students in the workplace. Journal of Business Communication, 34, 67-80.

Macke, F J. (1991). Communication left speechless: A critical examination of the evolution of speech communication as an academic discipline. Communication Education, AQ, 125-143.

McCloskey, D. (1994). The neglected economics of talk. Planning for Higher Education, 22, 11-16.

McPherson, B. (1998). Student perceptions about business communication in their careers. Business Communication Quarterly, 61,68-79.

Nelson, P. E. (1995). A summary of ideas for sustaining communication programs. Journal of the Association for Communication Administration, 2, 115-123.

Nisberg, J. N. (1996). Communication: what we hear, what we say vs. what they hear, what they say. The National Public Accountant, 41, 34-38.

O'Donovan, C. (1997). Which Master's matter? Communication World, 14, 36-40.

Reinsch, L. & Shelby, A. N. (1996). Communication challenges and needs: Perceptionsof MBA students. Business Communication Quarterly, 59, 36-52.

Pamell, C. L. (1996). Effective business communications: It is not just for the communications department. Executive Speeches, 11,9-13.

Parratt, S. (1995). Effective nonverbal communication. Legacy, 6, 30-33.

Pearson, J. C. & Sessler, C. J. (1991, May). Family communication and health: Maintaining marital satisfaction and quality of life. Paper presented at the Annual Meeting ofthe International Communication Association, Chicago, IL. (ERIC Document Reproduction Service No. ED335722)

Peterson, M. S. (1997). Personnel interviewers' perceptions of the importance and adequacy of applicants' communication skills. Communication Education, 46, 287-291.

Plutsky, S. (1996). Faculty perceptions of students' business communication needs. Communication Quarterly, 59,69-74.

Potoker, E. (1993, April). Management and training across cultures: Importance of non-verbal communication studies - a case study. Paper presented at the Annual Conferetice on Language and Communication for World Business and the Professions, Ypsilanti,MI. (ERIC Document Reproduction Service No. ED367029)

Price, J. P. (1991). Effective communication: A key to successful collaboration. Preventing School Failure, 35, 25-28.

Remland, M. S. (1994). The importance of nonverbal communication in the courtroom. New Jersey Journal of Communication, 2, 124-45.

Rogers, E. M. & Chaffee, S. H. (1983). Communication as an academic discipline: A dialogue. Journal of Communication, 33, 18-30.

Schramm, W. (1983). The unique perspective of communication: A retrospective view.Journal of Communication, 33, 6-17.

Scott, J. C. (1988). Facilitating communication for business. National Business Education Yearbook, No. 26. (ERIC Document Reproduction Service No. ED295042)

Simkin, M. G. (1996). The importance of good communication skills on 'IS' career paths. Journal of Technical Writing & Communication, 26, 69-78.

Smith, J. H. & Turner, P. H. (1993). A survey of communication department curriculumin four-year colleges and universities. Journal of the Association for CommunicationAdministration, 1, 34-49.

Staats, W. F. & Golen, S. P. (1985). Overcoming communication barriers between bankers and their customers. Journal of Retail Banking, 7, 14-20.

Stegman, J. D. (1988). The importance of managerial communication. Bulletin of the Association for Business Communication, 51, 25-26.

Stotsky, S. (May, 1992). The connection between language education and civic education. Bloomitigton, IN: ERIC Digest. (ERIC Document Reproduction Service No ED348318)

Ugbah, S. D. & Evuleocha, S. U. (1992). The importance of written, verbal, and nonverbal communication factors in employment interview decisions. Journal of EmploymentCounseling, 29, 128-37.

Wakefield, G. (1986, April). Communication competence in public relations' management counseling function. Paper presented at the Annual Meeting of the Central StatesSpeech Association, Cincinnati, OH. (ERIC Document Reproduction Service No. ED270833)

Winsor, J. L., Curtis, D. B., & Stephens, R. D. (1997). National preferences in businessand communication education. Journal of the Association for Communication Administration, 3, 170-179.

Witkin, B. R., Lovern, M. L., & Lundsteen, S. W. (1996). Oral communication in the English language arts curriculum: A national perspective. Communication Education, 45,40-57.